By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Stevadores in Charleston, S.C. have canceled plans to unload a cargo of seed potatoes today, as striking longshoremen shored up the single crack that had developed in their paralyzing work stoppage on East and Gulf Coast ports.

The Charleston local of the International Longshoremen's Association, AFL-CIO, broke the strike order Wednesday to unload bananas, and continued unloading them Wednesday night in defiance of orders from the union's national leadership to stop.

But the Charleston stevedores said they were canceling plans to unload the seed potatoes today—under pressure from top union officials. South Carolina farmers, hard-hit because of poor fall crops, had appealed to the union to unload the potatoes before they sprout.

The unloading of the bananas prompted Capt. William V. Bradley, ILA president, to assign a union vice president to the Southern city to investigate. He said the Charleston local could lose its charter by the action.

In Galveston, Tex., about 100 dockworkers who belong to an organization not connected with the striking longshoremen crossed picket lines under police supervision to unload a Swedish banana boat. There was no violence.

Outside of these isolated instances, however, the strike has effectively closed all East and Gulf Coast ports to all but military, dangerous or emergency cargoes, which the ILA itself has exempted from the strike provisions.

Among the cargoes halted by the 5-day-old strike of 60,000 longshoremen are two shiploads of wheat in New Orleans destined for East Pakistan. The Pakistan Embassy in Washington says the grain is urgently needed.

No bargaining sessions were scheduled for today. Railroads placed a voluntary embargo on export freight shipments to struck ports in an effort to prevent a choking pileup of goods on the waterfront. Railroad spokesmen termed the action customary and said it would not affect military shipments.

Alford Going to Washington

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Rep. Dale Alford, D-Ark., made his final planned talk in Arkansas Wednesday before leaving Congress Jan. 9.

He told Rotary Club members at a luncheon here the private enterprise system had made the United States the wealthiest nation in the world and that small businessmen were the mainstay of the system.

Arkansas' 5th Congressional District, which Alford represents, will be abolished on Jan. 9 because of a decline in the population of the state. Alford made an unsuccessful bid for governor of Arkansas in July.

Alford, an ophthalmologist, said he would return to his Little Rock practice after Jan. 9.

Berry Claims He Brought the Snow

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Maj. Homer Berry, who claims he brought central Arkansas its first white Christmas since 1926, got a bill Wednesday — for $336, from the Arkansas Automobile Club.

That, the club said, is how much the retired Air Force officer owed for car service expenses incurred by members because of the two to three inches of snow Berry claimed he made Monday.

And the club said the bill would grow as reports of more accidents and breakdowns filtered in.

Berry, who gained mild acclaim last summer by taking credit for rains that ended a drought in the state, took the bill good naturedly, but said he won't pay it.

In fact, he plans to send the club a bill for his services, he said. The way Berry figures it, he saved the club considerable expense by turning a sleet storm into snow. With sleet, he said, there would have been many more accidents.

The non-profit Arkansas club pays a standard fee to contract garages for rescue services for members who encountered bad weather or breakdowns.

Members of the club had 84 road service calls because of "Berry's storm," the AAA said. In addition to the bill, the club said, Berry will be sent an AAA membership "as a reward for his success" in weather handling.

Berry burns chunks of coke soaked in silver iodide and claims the particles rise to heights of 50,000 feet, gather moisture which condenses and falls as rain or snow.

Asked if he would pay the AAA bill if the club took him to court, Berry commented, "Where could you find 12 jurors who would agree that it's possible for a man to make it rain or snow?"

Cotton Maid Contest Has 20 Entries

MEMPHIS (AP) — Twenty of the loveliest young daughters of the cotton belt began facing cameras and judges today in preliminary to the 1963 Maid of Cotton contest.

The contest finals and the crowning of the cotton industry's new ambassador doesn't come until Friday night but in the meanwhile the girls go through a whirl of picture and press sessions, interviews and social events — all under close watch by the judges.

Scarlett Cornwell of Dardanelle, a student at the University of Arkansas, is the Arkansas entry in the contest.

Planned for today were a session for photos, a luncheon, a television appearance and a dinner dance.

The finals will be before an invitation-only audience at city auditorium. Final judging includes appearances by the girls in evening and street dress, brief talks by contestants and more interviews.

There is no talent competition and only the judges see the girls in swimsuits.

The winner will be whisked to New York where she will receive modeling instructions and be fitted in a new all-cotton wardrobe. Then follows a year of travel around the world advertising cotton.

Eye Shot Out

DEWITT, Ark. (AP) — Authorities reported Wednesday a 16-year-old DeWitt youth, Edward Bradberry, lost his sight in one eye Christmas day when a 22-caliber shell he had been shooting at him with a BB gun exploded. Authorities said the shell casing lodged in the youth's brain and he was taken to a Little Rock hospital.

Cold Fails to Materialize in Arkansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A cold front expected to hit north Arkansas today veered to the east instead and Arkansas can expect a few days of warmer weather, the Weather Bureau said.

An eastward flow of air helped push the front from the state, the Weather Bureau said.

Warm air rushed into the state from Texas today and temperatures were expected to moderate throughout the day. A cloud cover over the eastern and southern sections of the state was expected to hold temperatures down in those areas but warmer temperatures were expected in the northwest where skies were clear to partly cloudy. Lows around the state tonight were expected to be in the mid 30s.

Light rain and drizzle was expected in the southern and eastern sections of the state today. Some fog was reported in the area early today.

Temperatures in the low 20s were reported early today in north and central Arkansas. Little Rock reported an overnight low of 23 and Fayetteville, Harrison, Pine Bluff and Fort Smith had 25 degree readings.

Fourth Victim

HENDERSON, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Joyce Selden, 21, of El Dorado, has become the fourth victim in a Christmas-day collision here. She died Tuesday night. Her husband, Glenwood Selden and their nine-month-old daughter, Valerie, died shortly after the wreck. Raymond Hutchens, 53, of Burnett, Tex., was killed in the wreck and his wife and two daughters hurt seriously.

He said that during the year, 10 school plants have been damaged or destroyed by fire. These are Tuckerman, Cedarville, Naylor, Alma, Timbo, Black Oak, Violet Hill, Little Rock, Norphlet and Cherry Valley.

Fagan said the school patrons planned to confer with the county prosecutor.

He said a warning had been issued to officials of the school and that 10 per cent of state school aid could be withheld until necessary corrections were made.

The plan to withhold funds was the last step, Fagan said, and if "the parents can force the officials to comply with the basic safety law, everyone is better off."

Wants More Time for Fire Safety

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fagan, state supervisor of school safety, said Wednesday that only about two per cent of the state's public school officials have failed to comply with school fire safety requirements.

Fagan said most claim that the time set in which to comply is insufficient. A few, he said, are suspected of submitting false reports on fire drills and safety inspections.

The safety supervisor said State Police have been investigating complaints from school patrons in regard to fire safety. And he said he had just returned from checking a school in Ouachita County at the request of members of the community.

"We found empty fire extinguishers and have reason to believe fire drill requirements had not been met in some time," he said. He did not identify the school, pending a conference with Education Commissioner Arch Ford.

Fagan said the school patrons planned to confer with the county prosecutor.

Military Goes Over Strength With Kennedy

By FRANK CORMIER

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President Kennedy and his top military advisers doffed their coats on a sunny patio today for a far-ranging discussion of defense strategy and military spending.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, undersecretary Roswell L. Gilpatric and the Joint Chiefs of Staff met at the holiday White House.

Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, Air Force chief of staff, made an eleventh hour stand against cutting off development funds for the controversial Skybolt missile.

McNamara said in advance of the conference that it "certainly will be our recommendation" to scrap Skybolt, which Kennedy has pictured as obsolete, and perhaps unreliable, in an age of more powerful nuclear-tipped rockets.

The stated purpose of the military meeting was to provide Kennedy with a year-end review of the defense situation and to put finishing touches on the $51 billion defense budget.

The session was delayed half an hour while Kennedy met with Israeli Foreign Minister Golda Meir, en route home after service at the United Nations.

Kennedy, who arrived Friday at an oceanfront home borrowed from financier C. Michael Paul, is holding a continuing series of decision-making conferences in advance of the reconvening of Congress Jan. 9.

The subject Wednesday was the 1963 tax cut proposals.

The broad outlines of the plan, envisioning lower tax rates early next year for both individuals and corporations, were approved several weeks ago. At Wednesday's session Kennedy got into many of the details and gave general approval to the Treasury's plans. However, several of the conferees reported that much work remains to be done.

Undersecretary of the Treasury Henry Fowler said it "was a good meeting but the program is far from buttoned up." Assistant Secretary Stanley S. Stryer, another participant, agreed.

Just as Dillon interrupted a vacation at nearby Hobe Sound, Fla., to take part in the tax cut talks, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara had to leave the ski slopes of Aspen, Colo., to participate in the military discussions.

Flying in from Washington were Undersecretary of Defense Roswell L. Gilpatric, Gen. Maxwell Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the three other members of the joint chiefs.

For Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, Air Force chief of staff, the meeting perhaps represented a last chance to get a top level hearing for arguments against scrapping the Skybolt air-to-ground missile that dominated last week's two power talks between Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Arkansas Pig Crop 532,000

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The 1962 Arkansas pig crop totaled 532,000 head, 13 per cent below the 1961 crop of 609,000, the Crop Reporting Service of the Agriculture Department estimated today.

The 1962 figure is 24 per cent below the 1951-60 average of 703,000 head. The Crop Reporting Service used reports from 2,593 Arkansas farmers in preparing the 1962 estimate.

The 1962 Arkansas spring pig crop of 252,000 head was down 16 per cent from a year earlier and the fall crop of 280,000 head was down nine per cent from the fall of 1961.

Reports from farmers indicate that 33,000 sows will farrow in the spring of 1963, a decline of 11 per cent from the 37,000 that farrowed in the spring of 1962 and down 41 per cent from the 1951-60 average of 56,000.

British Train Collisions Fatal to 18

By ANTHONY WHITE

LONDON (AP) — Two British trains smashed together in a blizzard Wednesday night, killing at least 18 persons, and eight other deaths were reported from Europe as Arctic winds pushed bitter winter southward across the continent.

Thirty more persons were injured when the London-bound Scot Express crashed into the rear of a local train stopped at Cottenham Junction 25 miles southwest of Manchester.

One of the dead was believed to be an American serviceman. Six children were among the dead.

The local was filled with travelers on the traditional after-Christmas Boxing day holiday. Broken dolls and toys were scattered among the wreckage.

A blizzard was blowing. "It was utter carnage," said Harold Shiff, a survivor, who told of trying to help a dying young woman whose mother had been tossed half way through a broken window.

Rescue squads, summoned from the surrounding areas of Cheshire over icy roads, worked by headlamps carrying the injured to a field to await ambulances.

Europe's piercing weather extended from the Far North to the Mediterranean, where it was an unwelcome surprise, and eastward to Siberia.

Two people were frozen to death in northern Portugal. It snowed in northern and central Spain, and Barcelona was almost isolated by the unusual whiteness. Valencia oranges froze on the trees.

Italy was wrapped in snow from the Alps to Sicily. In the Italian Alps, temperatures plunged to 31 degrees below zero at Triapelle, highest inhabited area in Europe. Italian newspapers reported the coldest Christmas of the century.

Snowplows churned in Copenhagen, Denmark, where temperatures hovered around freezing.

Paris, dusted with snow, awoke to freezing weather. Germany was mostly free of fresh snow, but it was cold—14 to 17 degrees.

The Dutch skated on their frozen canals, and in Oslo, Norway, the day was clear and freezing.

But Hammerfest, which is farther north than Nome, Alaska, was having "mild" weather. It was 32 degrees above zero and most of the snow had been washed away by mild rain. Some residents thought it might be due to the Soviet nuclear tests some 900 miles to the east.

Scooter, Auto Collide, Boy Hurt

An auto driven by Judy Easterling and a motor scooter driven by Robert Crews, 14, collided this morning on South Main and a passenger on the scooter, Russell Bailey, 14, was injured. His condition is not considered serious. Crews escaped injury.

Officers Ray Torbert and Joe McCulley said both vehicles were traveling south and the scooter apparently edged into the side of the car. Young Bailey was taken to a local hospital for treatment of minor cuts and bruises by a Herndon-Cornelius ambulance.

Medical History in the Making

By JAMES CALOGERO

BOSTON, (AP) — Red-haired and freckle-faced Everett Knowles Jr. calmly awaits a new operation in which his right arm — and medical history — is at stake.

The 13-year-old boy has been told by Dr. Ronald Malt of Massachusetts General Hospital that he must undergo the surgeon's knife again, possibly early in January.

Everett says that he'll be ready whenever the doctor is.

Young Knowles already has undergone a series of history-making operations in which his completely severed right arm was reconnected to his body, although he can't use it yet.

He may become the first person in medical history ever to have a completely severed limb reconnected, with life, feel and usefulness.

The daring attempt at a medical breakthrough began last May 23 when young Knowles' right arm was cut off cleanly by a freight train as he was walking home from school in suburban Somerville.

Each of the several separate operations has been deemed successful, but with the usual caution of medical men, Massachusetts General Hospital doctors refuse to say at this stage that the boy's arm will be restored to usefulness.

Dr. Malt said the operation he contemplates deals with the nerve fibres, which already have been connected at the point the arm was severed, about two inches below the amput.

Things Just Didn't Work

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A would-be bandit, Richard Dean Holtan, didn't figure on a man named Monte Hall Wednesday, when he attempted to rob the Hi-Bernia Bank of $1,500.

"This bomb in this newspaper can blow up the whole block. I want $1,500. Please be careful," read the note which Holtan, 27, passed to teller Maureen Laval.

In line just behind Holtan was Hall—an FBI agent.

"Have you been robbed?" Hall shouted to Miss Laval after she handed Holtan $1,400.

She nodded. Hall arrested Holtan on the spot.

The newspaper held only a transistor radio.

Relatives of Prisoners Now in Florida

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The freighter African Pilot steamed into Port Everglades today, bringing 922 relatives of the Bay of Pigs invaders to freedom and joyous reunion with husbands, sons and fathers on American soil.

Devoting her last voyage to this errand of mercy, the 20-year-old African Pilot docked at the port near Fort Lauderdale, 25 miles at 9:01 a.m.

The rugged old workhorse of the sea, which had carried ransom supplies to Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro for the invasion prisoners, now goes into mothballs.

Seasickness, nervousness and a mild outbreak of measles aboard the ship failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the refugees who gave up everything they owned to escape Castro communism and join loved ones in the United States.

Only about 200 observers saw the freighter come in. The port was closed to all but newsmen and authorized officials. A big sign said "Welcome in English."

The Red Cross reported nine cases of contagious disease aboard. Three ambulances were on the dock to pick up 11 stretcher cases.

An American flag flew from the stern of the freighter. One tug went out to help her in to the dock.

Joe McGowan, Associated Press writer representing American news agencies on the African Pilot, said many passengers remained awake through the night, too nervous and excited to sleep, on the trip.

"I have a bed," said one elderly refugee, "but who could sleep at a time like this?"

A tangle of excitement swept through the ship when the engines started Wednesday night in Havana harbor. As the ship moved out, the refugees sang the Cuban national anthem.

Shortly after the departure, four children came down with measles, three in a single family. The two families were isolated. Dr. Banning Lary of Miami said there was little cause for concern and no reason for a quarantine of the ship.

Moving into international waters, the African Pilot picked up an escort of three U.S. Coast Guard vessels.

The freighter was designed to carry only 12 passengers and her life-saving equipment was inadequate.

There were only 500 cots set up in shelter deck areas but there were blankets for all, flown to Havana from the United States. Each person was given a box lunch including fried chicken, a ripe tomato, bread, butter and milk for the children.

Oldest of the refugees aboard was Angla Ceballos de Marero, 89, grandmother of one of the prisoners. The youngest was a baby born 22 days ago.

As a "Christmas bonus," Castro agreed to let the relatives leave Cuba, following the prisoners who spent 20 months in Castro's crowded jails after the gallant but futile effort to free their country from his rule.

Chief topic of conversation aboard the ship was the plight of a man who was turned away as the African Pilot prepared to move out.

James B. Donovan, New York attorney who negotiated the release of the prisoners, will be in charge of arranging for another ship.

The freighter was strangely quiet and seemed almost deserted as it docked at Port Everglades, 25 miles northeast of here. Only a few crew members lined the rails.

All of the refugees were asked to remain below to prevent dangerous crowding of the rails.

Without prompting from Red Cross officials, they pitched in to clean up the five shelter deck areas below the main deck, which they had occupied during the voyage.

One Cuban boy roamed the ship, looking up at every American he met and calling out cheerily, "Hello, Kennedy."

Brabham Was a Real Find at Fullback

By BEN THOMAS

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Nobody was more surprised than Danny Brabham when Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles converted him from tackle to fullback this fall.

But the 6-foot-4, 215-pound Brabham made the All-Southwest Conference team in his new position. "Nobody was more surprised than I," said the soft-spoken Brabham in an interview at the Arkansas training camp in this Mississippi Gulf Coast city. The Dockers are preparing for their clash next Tuesday at New Orleans with undefeated Mississippi in the Sugar Bowl.

"But it worked out just fine," said Brabham, an A-average student from Greensburg, La.

Broyles considers the switch one of the smartest moves he ever made.

Last spring Broyles decided the biggest weakness in his team was an undermanned backfield. He wanted a big, fast man in the center of the backfield, but at first glance no one was available. Then he had an idea.

Brabham, who had played both tackle and guard in the line, was big and fast—he runs the 100 in 10:2—and had been an All-State fullback in high school.

But Brabham was also the best linemen of the Razorback squad, leading the 1961 team in defensive statistics with 25 tackles, 45 assists, four pass plays stopped and two recoveries.

Broyles wasn't quite sure about the idea. Without telling his staff, he obtained movies of Brabham's senior year in high school.

A few days later, the red-haired

A jaunty and inescapably Parisian air is the hallmark of this wool suit (left) with plaid, brown, beige and blue. Lame wool ribbed knit dress in gold and beige (right) is perfect for evening. Both designs are by Tricosa-Feder of Paris.

Broyles called offensive backfield assistant Doug Dickey into his office and asked him to watch the film. Broyles didn't tell Dickey who the player was.

Dickey became enthusiastic about the high school player, telling Broyles the Razorbacks should pull out all stops to get him. Then Broyles told Dickey it was Brabham.

"We were pretty well fixed in the line," said Broyles. "But we needed a big fullback. I didn't know how Dickey would take to the idea so I wanted to see his reaction before telling him my plan."

There was another hitch. Brabham dropped out of school last spring after the Sugar Bowl game but planned to return for the fall semester.

"The boy was just burned out and felt he needed a rest," said

Broyles. When Brabham returned to school in September, he had three weeks to make the switch since he hadn't been available for spring practice.

Check Brabham's offensive statistics and you'll see he made the switch okay. He not only made All-SWC, but got 466 yards rushing in 126 carries on the Porskers' three-team system. He only lost two yards all season.

And even though he was the defensive leader the previous year, Brabham didn't play a lick of defense this season.

Dock Strikers

ping Association, which represents 235 domestic and foreign lines, met Wednesday and voted confidence in the management negotiating committee.

Key issue in the dispute is the size of dock work gangs, which the ship owners want cut from their present minimum of 20 to 17. The longshoremen refused, saying they will not negotiate their members out of jobs in the name of automation.

A four-day strike of longshoremen over the same issues was halted last October by an 80-day "cooling-off" period under the terms of the Taft-Hartley law. The strike was resumed when the cooling-off period expired.

Lower Taxes Will Bring Real Battle

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Anything as popular as lower taxes shouldn't be a call to battle. But the program which the Kennedy administration has drawn up at Palm Beach, Fla., and which it will disclose to Congress in about two weeks in chilly Washington, finds the battle lines well established even before the details are known.

Business wants one kind of tax cut. Labor makes it plain it wants another. The administration may well want a third.

Liberals favor tax cutting—if along certain lines—and forget about any Treasury deficits. Conservatives frown on tax cutting unless government spending also drops so the federal budget can be kept in balance, or nearly so.

The amount of the reduction is in dispute. The timing of the cut is, too. And, above all, the question is who gets the cut and how much—and will it be offset by loss of certain privileges in the present tax laws.

Business spokesmen tend to stress the good that would flow from a drop in the present 52 percent levy on corporate earnings. The money saved, they say, could be used for modernization or expansion, and hence for faster economic growth. They also favor drastic trimming of the top brackets of individual income taxes. The argument is that this would be money most likely to flow into investment markets for new ventures or expansion.

Labor leaders have put forth a different idea. Let the corporate changes go over for a year. The first cut should be in the lowest brackets of personal incomes. This would provide increased purchasing power, benefiting business and thus creating jobs for those now out of work.

Conservative spokesmen argue against this, contending that since the great dollar volume of tax collections come from the multitudes in the lower and middle brackets, any cut sizable enough to do them much good individually would mean a pyramiding of the federal budget deficit. The conservative argument is that such a deficit could lead to monetary inflation, a rise in consumer prices, and the individuals would be no better off at the end of the year.

Many liberals are on record as favoring both corporate and individual cuts as soon as possible. Their position is that together this would get the economy moving fast enough to provide enough business earnings and personal income for the Treasury to tax at the lower rates and still balance its books.

So the battle lines are drawn. And whatever the program the President presents to the new Congress next month, it's pretty sure to displease some people—and perhaps disappoint a lot of them.

Crackdown on Prescriptions

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Leon Holsted, of North Little Rock, president of the Arkansas Pharmaceutical Association, said Wednesday the federal Food and Drug Administration is making increased efforts in the state to prevent illegal refilling of prescriptions.

Holsted said violation of laws on refilling prescriptions could result in loss of license for the pharmacists, $1,000 to $10,000 fine and one to three years in jail.

He said the FDA "let us know in September that they felt some of the laws were not being complied with and that they planned to step up their investigations."

The information was passed on to pharmacists in the state and laws are being scrupulously observed," Holsted said.

Pharmacists cannot, under federal law, refill a prescription for a class A narcotic.

Holsted said he thought the state Health Department would probably follow up any conviction on federal charges. State laws provide for a warning on first offense and revocation of license on the second.

A Top Secret About Pushinka

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — If Pushinka is about to have puppies—it's top secret.

Two weeks ago it was confirmed that Pushinka—one of the Kennedy children's three pet dogs—had taken a pregnancy test. Now the White House is turning coy.

The iron curtain has descended, "Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, quipped when asked about the test results. The 10 days it took for completion are gone and the results should be in. But, Salinger is refusing to confirm or deny the rumors.

Pushinka, a fluffy white dog, is the daughter of the Soviet Union's famous space dog "Strelka" and was given to the Kennedys by Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Scout Troop 117 Meets

The Little Hut at the Fair Park was the scene of a Christmas tea December 20 given by Girl Scout Troop 117 in honor of their donors. The Jett B. Graves S.S. and Mrs. B. J. Westbrook, Mrs. J. D. Martindale and Mrs. Homer Reeves.

The hut was gaily decorated with poinsettias, pine and red berries. Hot spiced tea and cookies were served to the guests present.

Miss Sue Moore Wed With Shower

A popular bride-elect, Miss Sue Moore, was feted with a Lingerie Shower Saturday, December 22 in the home of Mrs. Mary Hamm. Mrs. Dave Ryker of Little Rock was hostess for the small, informal gathering.

The honoree wore a red wool suit and was given a corsage of pink roses. The home was festively decorated with appropriate Christmas decorations. Among those attending were Mrs. Norman Moore, mother of the honoree, and Mrs. Guy Basye, mother of the groom-elect.

Bridge-Luncheon At Evans Home

Pre-Christmas entertainments included a Bridge-Luncheon which Mrs. Don Evans and Mrs. Joe Watkins had at the Evans home on Thursday, December 20. Various kinds of Yuletide decoration were seen throughout the home.

White and gold formed the color scheme for the serving table where a delicious buffet luncheon was spread. Each of the quartet tables was centered with a tiny Christmas tree and candy canes. In the afternoon, bridge was played at three tables. High scorer was Mrs. Al Graves, Jr., while Mrs. Chris Petre was low. The game prize went to Mrs. Thomas E. Jr.

Roast, Hams in Top Roles at Market

With more holiday dinners on tap, beef roasts and hams will take the leading roles in New Year's weekend menus.

But turkeys, the favorite for Christmas dinners, will make another strong appearance.

Shoppers will find a good selection and variety of meat, fish and poultry in the markets.

One leading Eastern supermarket chain is offering rib roast at $1.05 a pound, whole fresh hams at 53 cents a pound and whole smoked hams at 59 cents a pound. Prices of turkeys, quite reasonable before Christmas, are unchanged.

Among the special fish offerings are canned Maine sardines, canned tuna, fish sticks and fish portions. Many other varieties are available in various sections of the country. In the Northeast, they include clams, fillets, lobsters, oysters, scallops and whiting.

Prices of citrus fruits have gone up only moderately so far despite the severe freeze in Florida. Ample supplies of navel oranges are moving to market from Arizona and California. Mexico is shipping oranges to markets in the southwestern section of the country.

Good fresh fruit buys include apples, bananas, grapes, and California oranges and grapefruit.

Good supplies of carrots, lettuce, onions, squash, potatoes and sweet potatoes will be found.

Dairy products and eggs are good buys.

In the Southeast, chuck roast, ground beef and stewing beef are classified as best buys, while in the Midwest beef steaks, rib roasts, ham, pork chops, lamb chops and lamb leg roasts carry attractive price tags.

The preferred cuts of beef are in greater demand for the New Year's restaurant trade in the West, and as a result West Coast food shoppers will find price tags a bit higher in their markets.

CHATTER

By BILL RALEY

Nothing is so completely over as Christmas just past. We build up so much momentum, and three days later, it all seems like a dream. And such a nice one.

We are convinced that Santa Claus was not keeping a very close watch all year. Otherwise, we would never have received so many wonderful gifts. We are also wondering, is there any significance attached to the many bottles of sweet smelling stuff . . . could somebody think somebody is a stinker?

Anyway, we are back at work and ready to exchange anything that does not fit, does not please, is the wrong color or that was duplicated several times.

And . . . we are having a clearance sale. A beautiful array of dresses that are guaranteed to give you the after-Christmas lift. The styles are many and varied; there are casual and dressy types, all taken from our regular stock and reduced for clearance. Since the price range is so wide, we suggest that you come in and browse through; make your own selection . . . they are truly wonderful buys!"

There are several cashmere coats left, all styled by Briny Marlin, of Bernhardt Altman Cashmere. You will be surprised at the low, low price.

Costume suits and regular two-piece suits, exactly twenty-two of them, reduced for clearance. A group of winter skirts, to wear with your favorite sweater or blouse, the one you got for Christmas . . . sizes from 8 to 18 and all in between . . . priced to sell.

Most important of all, the sale on party dresses. You will want something new for New Year's Eve . . . now is the time.

We hope to see you at the sale at Ray's Style Shoppe, 523 West 3rd.

Trading Is Heavy on Stock Mkt.

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1962 year-end rally moved ahead with increasing difficulty early this afternoon as cross currents jumbled the list. Trading was heavy.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up a modest .3 at 242.9 with industrials up .3, rails up .4, and utilities unchanged.

First-hour volume was 1.07 million shares.

Tax-loss selling mingled with the hour profit taking, as mirrored by the large number of sales for cash or "next-day" delivery.

Investment funds bought and sold sizable blocks of stock as they shaped their portfolios for annual reports.

The general feeling on the street seemed to be one of cautious optimism for '63.

Sears Roebuck fell 1 1/4 to 76 1/2 on successive blocks of 5,000 and 20,000 shares.

In a similar transaction, Clark Equipment eased . . . to 30 1/2 on a block of 21,400 shares.

IBM picked up a couple of points and Xerox a point. Amerasia cut back a gain of well over a point to a fraction. Other aerospace issues showed scant change.

Ford and Chrysler were fractionally higher. Other motors did little.

American Home Products, Merck, Texaco, Republic Steel and Woolworth were among fractional losers. Chesapeake & Ohio rose nearly a point.

Southern California Edison gained at 30 1/2 on 10,000 shares.

Temperatures Moderate Over the U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Temperatures moderated in most sections of the West and Midwest today but fairly cold weather held a tight grip across the major part of the nation.

There were some sub-zero readings this morning, in Utah and in sections of the Midwest. However, marks were far higher than the record lows for the date Wednesday morning in many Western and Midwest cities, with readings as low as 31 below zero.

The icy air moved eastward from the north central region and temperatures during the night were a few degrees below zero in parts of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and near zero in Ohio. Below zero marks also were reported across snow-covered areas in Utah, with a -7 in Delta.

It was a little chilly in the Southeast, except in most of Florida. Freezing weather prevailed in Tennessee, with temperatures in the 20s in western sections and in the 30s in northern sections of Georgia and Alabama and western North Carolina.

Only sections out of the freezing belt were the Pacific Coast, the extreme Southwest, southern Texas, the Southern tier of states from Louisiana eastward, the Carolinas and much of Virginia.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up .97 at 652.61. Prices were mixed in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange, Corporate and U.S. government bonds were irregular.

Dog Wasn't Very Grateful

WASHINGTON (AP)—A lively little nipper of a dog whined from an ice floe in the Potomac River.

Pretty Barbara Foster spotted it, stripped down to her undies and swam 50 yards to the rescue as evening rush hour traffic whizzed by Wednesday near the Jefferson Memorial.

The shivering German shepherd eyed her as she made her way through the chill water, then promptly bit her four times before the two were picked up by a Fire Department rescue boat.

"Ingrate Mongrel," said the police. "You wouldn't leave a human out there to drown, would you?" asked Miss Foster, 20, a junior at the University of Illinois.

Death Comes to Five Persons

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Possibility of an indirect link between measles and multiple sclerosis is suggested by two medical researchers at the University of California, Los Angeles.

Drs. John M. Adams and David T. Imagawa say their research indicates a disguised measles virus may be involved in the mysterious and crippling multiple sclerosis.

A fresh mass of Arctic air headed into the northern Plains and Upper Mississippi Valley and below zero temperatures were in prospect for much of the Midwest tonight.

Dismissal of Suit Is Asked

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A motion seeking dismissal of a suit filed against Harding College over an unpublished high school textbook was introduced in federal District Court Wednesday.

Thomas H. Stevenson, a Painesdale, Mich. writer, filed suit Dec. 3 against the Searcy institution, seeking $90,700 in damages. He alleges the college had contracted with him and George W. de Huszar of Chicago to write a textbook on American history. The college failed to publish the book after its completion, Stevenson alleges, causing him loss of royalties.

The defendants asked dismissal on grounds that de Huszar had not been made a party to the suit and that he was part owner of the manuscript. The college maintains it has continuously made efforts to find a publisher for the next.

Ricky Nelson Plans to Wed

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Rick Nelson will marry pretty blonde Kristin Harmon, 18, the daughter of former football star Tom Harmon and actress Elyse Knox.

The Harmon announced the engagement at a family party Christmas eve. They said the wedding will be in the spring. Harmon, now a sportscaster, was a star halfback with the University of Michigan and also played with the professional Los Angeles Rams.

Nelson, 22, is one of the stars in his family's television comedy series, "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet."

Good Year for Going to Movies

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It was a good year for going to the movies, even if 1962 didn't produce any film that seemed to be an enduring classic.

The general run of Hollywood film provided entertainment of a wide variety. There was less dwelling on the sordid, although the year did bring "Lolita" and "A Walk on the Wild Side." Movie makers found out that sex and shock didn't necessarily guarantee box office.

Here are the dozen American-made movies that seemed to this movie fan the most meritorious of 1962:

1. "Lawrence of Arabia." Too long and sometimes diffuse, it was nevertheless a monumental achievement in the use of the film medium.

2. "To Kill a Mockingbird." A modest lesson in human dignity, it got closer to the heart than any recent movie.

3. "Long Day's Journey into Night." Terrifically acted, this filmed stage play was a potent and demanding experience.

4. "Billy Budd." An effective parable of good vs. evil, it was notable for the angelic performance of Terence Stamp.

5. "The Longest Day." Almost as good as the original east.

6. "Miracle Worker." A beautifully acted duet between Anne Bancroft and Patty Duke.

7. "Music Man." A bit overproduced, it was still a miraculous musical, thanks in large part to the driving performance of Robert Preston.

8. "Mutiny on the Bounty." It made up in beauty and size for what it lacked in dramatic impact.

9. "Freud." A remarkable intellectual experience, it was a brave and successful attempt at plumbing the hidden reaches of the mind.

10. "Counterfeit Trail." Here was high adventure at its best, a drama that moved fast yet managed to be moving.

11. "Manchurian Candidate." Its audacious science-fiction plot was not to be taken seriously; it could be enjoyed as a suspense film ranking with the best of Hitchcock.

12. "Birdman of Alcatraz." It managed to take a difficult theme and turn it into engrossing drama.

Other films were notable for startlingly good performances, though the entire production left something to be desired.

The year's worst: "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse."

Negligence Ruled Out in Slaying

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The state Claims Commission ruled Wednesday State Prison officials were not negligent in arming a trusty who raped a woman and shot to death a man last January during a brief escape.

The convict is Charles F. Fields, who was serving a life term for rape.

Mrs. Verna Mencer of Halley, widow of C. A. Mencer, the slain man, filed a claim for $142,603 and a rural couple of near Sheridan filed a claim for $40,000, stemming from the rape incident.

Fields had been in prison since 1947 and had been a trusty for eight years. He was armed to protect a herd of swine from dogs and wild animals.

There was nothing in Fields' prison background to show that he was anything except a model prisoner and good trusty, the commission said.

The commission, without the element of negligence, could not recommend damages. The claimants could appeal to the 1963 General Assembly to award damages on its own motion.

In other action Wednesday, the commission:

Ruled the Highway Department was negligent in not repairing a hole in state Highway 149 near Earle and recommended a $14,908 payment for Sharon Teague, 14, of Earle.

Miss Teague said she was a passenger in a car that struck the hole, swerved off the road and hit a bridge abutment. She sought $55,621 for loss of sight in her left eye and other injuries.

Rejected a claim by Troutt Motel of Benton for $80,000 damages allegedly caused by construction of Interstate Highway 30. The owners claimed the motel was denied access to the highway by construction of the road.

Rejected the claim of Frank McCormack of Little Rock for $34,296 for relocation of a reservoir on his land in Lonoke County due to highway design changes, and Refused the claim of William H. Dunn of Little Rock for $16,000 for injuries to himself and his family when their car left state Highway 9 near Morrilton last September. Dunn blamed an oil coating application for the accident.

Food was sent aboard so that some of the refugees could eat breakfast while others were being processed.

About 35 minutes after the ship docked, the first refugee—a child—was carried down the ship's ladder.

A small girl appeared on deck in a red dress, drinking milk, and watched the activity.

By LOUIS UCHITELLE

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A freighter packed with 923 relatives of the Bay of Pigs invaders sailed today toward south Florida and a reunion with the invasion captives.

Traded by Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro for medicine and food.

Several U.S. Coast Guard craft met the S.S. African Pilot at sea and escorted the 10,000-ton, 460-foot merchantman and its cargo of men, women and children bound for Fort Everglades, Fla.

The African Pilot's crew, striving to make comfortable its passengers ranging from grandmothers to infants, found it especially trying to turn away the would-be last man aboard.

A shabbily dressed Negro raced up the rising gangplank shrieking "ayudame (help me)!" Wednesday night as the African Pilot made ready to cast off.

Guards on deck, strictly charged to let no more aboard the crowded craft, regrettably barred his entry. Two Cuban soldiers on the pier scrambled up and yanked their trembling countryman back to the dock.

A man in worker's clothes threw an arm around his shoulders and led him away. Two armed soldiers followed the pair around a corner of a warehouse crammed with $11 million in drugs and food which the African Pilot brought to Cuba Sunday as down payment on a $53 million commodity ransom for 1,113 men.

Castro's troops captured in the April 17, 1961 invasion at the Bay of Pigs.

The outbound African Pilot glided past Morro Castle, ancient stone sentinel of Havana Harbor at 6:51 p.m.—about two hours later than scheduled.

Its human cargo traveled north with little or nothing more than the clothing each passenger wore. Other items—even Cuban money, of dubious value outside Cuba, they had to surrender before embarking.

A corps of American Red Cross nurses and doctors worked to ease the voyage for the voluntary exiles. Cots, blankets and sanitary equipment flown to Cuba for the voyage were doled out.

In another development, President Kennedy planned a conference at Palm Beach, where he is spending the Christmas holidays, with five liberated leaders of the invasion force which was beaten back in its Cuba attack 20 months ago.

New Licenses
LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas passenger car tags and drivers licenses go on sale Jan. 2.

The state Revenue Department said Wednesday in order to obtain the licenses the owner must have a 1962 registration slip, a personal property tax receipt for 1961, a 1963 personal property assessment receipt and a 1962 drivers license.

Tax Provision for Overseas Firms, People

EDITORS NOTE—The new tax revision law which takes effect Jan. 1 is of particular interest to Americans who live abroad and American companies with subsidiaries overseas. The following articles, second in a series, describes these provisions.

By JOE HALL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Movie stars and other Americans who live overseas will find themselves subject to U.S. income tax on money earned abroad, under the 1963 tax revision law.

The law, which takes effect generally Jan. 1, also increases taxes for many firms which do business overseas.

The Treasury, in urging that foreign income of U.S. citizens be made taxable, cited one actor living in Switzerland who reported $1,099,791 of tax-free earnings in 1960.

A housewife in the same country reported the same income. Legislators handling the tax bill said she was the star's wife.

The present tax code gives U.S. citizens, who are bona fide residents of a foreign country, full income tax exemption on all earnings derived from sources outside this country.

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon said that 41,000 persons took advantage of this in 1960 to exclude $440 million in income.

Congress was told that many of these apparently went abroad for the tax advantages. A movie star, for example, could derive income from a foreign company set up to make a picture, but most of the film's profits would result from showings in the United States.

President Kennedy recommended an end to the exemption altogether but Congress declined to go that far, mostly because it felt some added incentives should be continued for executives to take posts abroad with American companies doing foreign business.

However, the new law sharply curbs the tax-exemption privilege. It is limited to $20,000 a year for the first three years the citizen is a bona fide foreign resident, and $35,000 annually thereafter.

The value of fringe benefits which the person might receive will be taken into account gradually in applying the limits. One-third would be included in 1964, two-thirds in 1965, and the full value from then on.

Fringe benefits could include such things as special allowances to an executive to permit him to send a child back to the United States to attend college.

The foreign resident can subtract from U.S. taxes the levies paid in the country where he lives. But in many countries, including Switzerland, these are much lower than U.S. rates.

The new rules apply to amounts received after March 12, 1962, for services performed after Dec. 31, 1962, and to amounts received after Dec. 31, 1962, for services before that. The former provision is aimed at advance-payment arrangements.

Taxation of earnings of foreignness of Arabia, O'Toole's duties subsidiaries of American companies produced one of the biggest controversies in congressional consideration of the revision bill. Those earnings are not now taxed in this country until repatriated as dividends.

The new law will subject to current taxation most of the earnings of foreign subsidiaries which serve as sales outlets, personal holding companies, or service organizations.

Earnings of manufacturing subsidiaries will not be affected by the law. Nor will it apply to income of any subsidiaries in underdeveloped countries.

The new law substantially ends what the Treasury describes as a double allowance resulting in a lower tax than the U.S. corporate rate on earnings of foreign subsidiaries which are brought back to this country.

The tax code now permits the foreign income tax to be deducted from profits in computing the U.S. tax, and then a good part of the foreign levy is allowed as a credit against the U.S. liability. This can result in an effective tax rate of 45 per cent or less on such earnings.

Under the revision law, the computation method will be changed so that an effective rate of 52 per cent will be paid, the same as on domestic profits.

However, this will apply only to earnings from subsidiaries in developed countries. The double allowance still will be permitted on profits made in backward nations.

Real estate owned abroad will be included in the gross estate of a U.S. citizen or resident who dies after July 1, 1964.

The provision also applies to a person who dies after Oct. 16, 1962, the date of enactment of the revision law, if the property was acquired for a consideration after Jan. 31, 1962.

Foreign real estate is not now subject to the estate tax.

NEXT: Taxpayers who expect to make expense account deduction claims better be well supplied with notebooks.

End of Long Campaign for O'Toole

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It was the end of a long campaign for Peter O'Toole.

"Campaign is a good word for it," sighed the English actor who is starring in "Lawrence of Arabia."

It had taken him from the searing sands of Jordan and Morocco to the rainless plains of Spain and finally, to the watering places of remote Hollywood. He sipped his beer and sighed again.

"When I agreed to do this picture, they told me it would take five months," he said. "That was two years ago October."

He had reckoned without the wives of his employer, producer Samuel Spiegel, a man bent on perfectionism ("On the Waterfront," "Bridge on the River Kwai").

With the successful launching of the Hollywood premiere of "Lawrence of Arabia," O'Toole's duties for Spiegel were finally ended except for one more picture the actor is contracted for. "Sam keeps muttering something about my playing a Texan. Ridiculous."

Theirs was not an immediate attachment, O'Toole recalled. "We met first in 1958, and Sam was unimpressed," he recalled.

"I didn't care much for Sam at first, either. But I must say I have grown to like him. Sam is a burglar, of course. But he has the face of a burglar, and that's his charm. Other producers can be burglars but they don't look like it."

It should be added that "burglar" is a show biz term of semi-endearment for a sharp operator who generally gets the best of a deal.

You may have gathered that O'Toole is an outspoken type. He is a rangy fellow with tuff-colored hair and casual dress. He is also one of England's best young actors.

This was his first trip to Hollywood.

Redecorating Home Good for Wives

By PHYLLIS BATTLE

NEW YORK — Psychiatrists have stated that redecorating her home is, for a woman, the most traumatic experience of her life. Few husbands can understand this. Why should their wives, so efficient and poised in everyday life, suddenly fall apart just because the slipcovers slid? Why should they cry over the color of a room, panic over a pillow slip and take to the grape because of a drape?

The answer is quite simple. "A woman's home is the face—the larger face," said Barnett (Bill) Simons, AID, "And she needs for it to be beautiful and personable. She knows what to do for her own or smaller, face. There are cosmetics and creams. But although most women I've met have amazingly good taste, they are insecure about how to handle their homes."

Simons has come to the aid of the panicked woman (psychiatrists call her traumatic, Simons sees her as merely in a state of temporary panic, by forming an organization called "Instant Interiors." For a set fee of $10, Bill or one of his three associates will spend an eight-hour day with a client, suggesting redecorating ideas which will allow a woman to "re-do" her place with the furnishings she has on hand.

The charm of the service is that "Instant Interiors" sells nothing. They, rather, give detailed and imaginative suggestions in relation to color scheme, floor plan, window treatment, furniture, etc., "so that a family can continue to live with the familiar things they love—but so that the familiar things have a new flip."

Such a service appeals to thousands of women who are fearful of hiring a decorator because it may cost her a great deal of money, in new furnishings and exotic ideas. With "I.I.," she is spending a set fee to buy new ideas, reassurance and a relief from panic.

Simons it on the revolutionary consulting idea when a regular client of his decorating services was forced to move from an aged high-ceilinged apartment into a modern, small-room, low-ceiling house. She called him. He came and found her sitting amid end tables and barrels of upholstered furniture, helpless. "It's not scaled right, and I've got way too much furniture," she wailed. "What do I do now?"

Between 9:30 and 5:30 that day, Bill decided what she should keep, what she should discard, where the best pieces should be placed for the best effect. "It was an esthetic kick, for both of us," he remembered. "In see a new house take shape, before your eyes. I got to thinking, then."

"A decorator so often is in the position of being just a salesman. It's ridiculous. I didn't go through the technical training and the art training to become a salesman. I decided it's really more a challenge and a gratification to make order out of mayhem—to put life into sag."

Simons' first order of business when he arrives at a house or apartment is to learn what are the best-loved pieces of furniture a woman owns. ("It's never a pen-broke table. It's always something they were afraid to buy because it's a little kooky—like a Chinese gong, or something"). He makes these sentimental pieces the focal point of the room, and plans life around them.

The one thing that bothers Simons most, in his clients' attitudes, is "rigidity."

"They don't want 'model rooms' like they see in magazines and stores, but they're afraid to get away from that look because—well, they have to have something expert to copy. I suggest some ideas that will make the rooms more personal. For instance, I love portraits of the kids on the walls, or a piano loaded with family pictures, without those things, a living room falls far short of what it should be."

"And usually, a woman will be delighted to learn she can actually have a picture of her husband on a living room table—that a decorator thinks that's not only okay, but good taste. Then she's over the panic hurdle for good."

Canned Dry Soup Mix Makes Tempting Dip

Appetizers in the living room make an excellent first course for a company dinner. While the hostess takes care of the last minute kitchen details, guests can relax and enjoy pleasant chatter.

Dips, gay and festive, are perfect appetizers. And here to give you a helping hand in making tasty dips are the new canned dry soup mixes. Each little can of soup mix contributes big dividends... ease of preparation and flavor plus it takes up so little space on the pantry shelf.

Gently combine all ingredients. Chill. Makes about 2 cups dip.

When serving time arrives arrange cooked and chilled jumbo shrimp around a bowl of this delicious dip for dunking. To go along mugs of chilled V-8 juice. Include, too a jar of mixed nibbles... pretzel sticks, cereal tidbits, and salted peanuts, heated until crisp in a garlic and celery-salt seasoned butter.

Here's another tempting dip.

Cucumber Onion Dip

1 can (1 1/2 ounces) onion dry soup mix

2 cups (1 pint) dairy sour cream

1 cup grated cucumber

1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire

Gently combine all ingredients. Chill. Makes about 3 cups dip.

With the holidays at hand you'll want to clip and save this recipe for Creamy Caper Dip

1 can (1 1/2 ounces) onion dry soup mix

2 cups (1 pint) dairy sour cream

2 tablespoons capers

2 teaspoons chopped chives

few drops Tabasco

3 Kinds of Refugees Leaving Cuba

By J. M. ROBERTS

Associated Press News Analyst

Three kinds of refugees are leaving Cuba this week.

One had been prisoner since the unsuccessful attempt at counter-revolution in 1961.

One consisted of relatives, many of whom surrendered all their property except their clothes in order to join their men in the United States.

The third was Russian, left high and dry by a Kremlin military-political about.

One cannot help but wonder whether many of the Russians might have liked to turn westward instead of eastward. And what is in the minds of both Cubans and Russians who are still stuck with the Castro regime.

Every time Peking makes any sort of deal with Mongolia it gives Moscow the itch. Mongolia became the first satellite of Communist Russia more than 4 years ago. Three Chinese regimes since then have considered the situation a violation of their own sphere. In recent years both countries have played up to the Mongols, in rather offhand fashion, through trade and friendship pacts and now China has agreed to a border settlement which will only make the Kremlin wonder where the catch is. None of the borders in that area ever has been very well-defined, and armies great and small have swept back and forth across them—Mongol, Chinese, Japanese and Russian, since the days of the Khans. More will be heard about it as the Sino-Soviet contest for Communist leadership continues.

Incidentally, as the Soviet-Chinese dispute appears to be settling into a new manifestation of ancient rivalries, the Western powers are taking another look at their attitude toward it.

A year ago there was a tendency to keep hands off, lest Western interference should foster a healing of the front. Now there is some belief that the split may be passing the point of no return, and that the West will yet be able to take some real advantage from it.

The U.S.S.R. must have reached the bottom of the bag of nuclear tricks she needs to test. She is offering another testing truce, presumably to last until she can prepare some new ones. But her own actions have greatly relieved the political pressures which required the United States to accept last time.

Mexico's Team Has Back to Wall

By WILL GRIMSLEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) —

Mexico, down 0-2 and with its back to the wall, counted on the crack doubles combination of Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox to get back into the fight against Australia for tennis' famed Davis Cup.

Prospects looked bleak for the scrappy Latin Americans, playing in the challenge round for the first time in history, but Pancho

Centenas, the young team captain, refused to be dismayed. "We are not giving up yet," he said. "We believe we can win the doubles and we can make an interesting match of it on the last day."

Osuna and Palafox, beaten in the opening singles matches Wednesday, take the center court against an unnamed Australian team. Thursday, realizing defeat will crush Mexican hopes of an upset.

The match will start at 11 p.m. EST, Wednesday.

Harry Hopman, Australian captain, exercised the prerogative of waiting until an hour before the match time to reveal the identity of his team.

It was almost certain to be Rod Laver and Roy Emerson. Laver, winner of four major singles championships during the past year in a rare grand slam, turned in an awesome display of stroking power to crush Mexico's ace, Osuna, 6-2, 6-1, 7-5, in just 69 minutes.

Nicole Fraser, 29-year-old former Wimbledon champion playing in his fifth challenge round, won over a surprisingly formidable Palafox on sheer nerve, 7-9, 6-3, 6-4, 11-9.

At the end of a 2 hour, 50 minute marathon, Fraser, who was semi-retired from big time competition for the last two years, was wobbly on his legs and near physical exhaustion.

Osuna, 24-year-old University of Palafox, 28-year-old undergraduate at Corpus Christi, Tex., University, have been playing together for the last four years.

Only Clothing Allowed Out Of Cuba

By JIM BECKER

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Weary Red Cross workers rushed final preparations Wednesday to care for 1,000 relatives of Cuban invasion prisoners—Fidel Castro's "Christmas bonus." They are expected to arrive Thursday.

Most will sail to this country—and political exile—with only the clothing on their backs for reunion with the 1,113 prisoners freed from Cuban jails in a $53-million human barter.

Overcome by heat and emotion, many fainted as solemn lines of men, women and children passed through dockside checkpoints in Havana, according to reports from the Cuban capital.

The battered old freighter African Pilot was fitted to carry the 1,000 Cubans on the voyage. They are parents, wives, children, brothers and sisters of the prisoners captured in the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion in April 1961.

Sailing of the African Pilot would be the second large departure from Havana in two days. In a surprise move late Tuesday, a Soviet passenger liner left Havana with hundreds of Russians who had been stationed in Cuba.

The Russian men and women, many wearing work clothes and some carrying small children, were among the estimated 20,000 sent to Cuba from Iron Curtain countries last summer. They may have been workers on missile sites.

A Pan American World Airways cargo plane flew from Miami to Havana on Wednesday with Red Cross nurses and emergency supplies for use aboard the African Pilot on the trip to Florida.

Leading the delegation was Enso V. Bighinatti, assistant national director of disaster services of the American Red Cross. Upon his return to U.S. soil, he told a news conference: "Everyone was extremely cordial to us. There was no secrecy and we had freedom of movement."

The East Coast longshoremen's strike will not affect the unloading of the African Pilot. "This is what we consider an emergency," said a spokesman for the longshoremen.

U.S. health and immigration teams were set up at Port Everglades to give any needed inoculations to the relatives.

After processing, which is expected to take about three hours, the elites will be loaded into 30 buses and escorted by the Florida Highway Patrol to a huge auditorium in Miami where they will be reunited with the prisoners.

Stephen Wise, director of the Cuban Refugee Relief Center in Miami, said the relatives will be treated in much the same manner as any Cubans arriving by plane or boat in the past three years.

"The only problem here is that since such a large group is arriving at the same time, we're making arrangements for temporary shelter and feeding until we can get them all processed and out on the street," Wise said.

Refugee families get a maximum of $100 a month from funds of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Individuals get a maximum of $60 a month. The average for families is $92, for individuals $54, center sources said.

The prisoners met other family members in the same auditorium Sunday and Monday after they arrived in Miami in the two-day, 10-plane Operation Ransom that ended in the dying hours of Christmas Eve.

Castro told New York attorney James B. Donovan, who arranged the swap of the invasion prisoners for sorely needed drugs and baby food, that he would allow the 1,000 relatives to join the prisoners as a Christmas bonus.

Donovan also said Castro had promised to discuss an early release of Americans he has imprisoned for antirevolutionary activities. There are 23, serving sentences up to 30 years.

Negotiations for their release are being carried on through the Swiss Embassy, which handles U.S. affairs in Cuba.

Bridge May Link Sweden and Denmark

AP Special Report

By BRACK CURRY

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Sweden and Denmark are considering a mammoth project to link the two countries by bridge.

Its completion would bring a new "city of two nations" with a population of four to five million people. As one of the world's largest cities it would have immense commercial and industrial

The project has wide official and public support. A committee appointed by the two governments has recommended construction of a 3 1/3 mile bridge across the Oresund—the body of water that separates Sweden and the Danish island of Zealand. The bridge would cost 750 million Swedish crowns—$144.8 million—and would take 10 years to build, including preparatory work. The committee recommends that it be built between the Swedish city of Helsingborg and the Danish city of Elsinore.

at the narrowest point of the Oresund.

It would be of double-deck construction with a four-lane highway above for vehicles and rail lines underneath. Ships could pass beneath it.

The committee says this permanent link between Sweden and Denmark would so increase commercial and industrial activity that a population increase would naturally follow. It predicts that by the end of this century one fourth of the population of Sweden and Denmark will live along the Oresund.

Swedish and Danish proponents of the project visualize Copenhagen, Denmark's capital city with a population of one million, and the south Swedish port city of Malmö, with 200,000 people, as basic components of this city spanning the Oresund.

Aside from these cities, there is plenty of space for development of a huge new community with industry, residential zones and recreation areas that would merge with the present cities.

The joint Swedish-Danish committee submitted its report after an eight-year survey. It made no recommendation as to how the structure should be financed. Swedish and Danish governments may share the cost. Swedish and Danish private interests might finance it with the aid of foreign capital.

One question worrying the planners is whether it would be legal to construct a bridge across an international sea channel. Danish experts say international law does not lay down any definite policy on the question.

The decision to build or not to build may come in 1963.

Spicy Pancakes Salute New Year!

Salute the New Year with spicy stuffed pancakes for a very special brunch or supper. They're "just the thing" for mid-winter servings—satisfying and savory with lively flavored deviled ham and juicy, crisp apple. In fact, deviled ham lends itself, zestily, to any number of pancake recipes. Try it, for instance, spread between layers of pancakes, stacked and served with sour cream, maple syrup and a glorious hot orange sauce!

Spicy Stuffed Pancakes

| 1 cup pancake mix              | 1 egg                       |
| 1 cup milk                     | 1 cup sliced apples         |
| 1 tablespoon liquid shortening | 1 1/2 ounce can deviled ham |

Make pancakes according to directions on package. Fold in apples. Use a generous quarter cup of the batter for pancake. Remove from griddle and spread with deviled ham. Roll and place on heated platter. Serve with a dollop of sour cream.

MAN ON THE SKIBALD MARE

By Nelson C. Nye

By NELSON C. NYE
XXVIII

Rafe quit walking to think, but he could think of was getting off his blistered feet. The only answer was the limping horse right behind him. He twisted his head and took a furious look. Abruptly—to make sure he wasn't tempted—he peeled the reins' bridle and pitched it away. When his eyes wouldn't leave it he stomped the tooled leather out of sight in the sand.

Then he set off again. Peering into the orange blaze of the sun he couldn't find the hills he'd picked out for steeage. "The blue hills of home." The wistful sound of it made him curse. He thought of getting out of his boots, abandoning them, like the saddle and bridle and the emptied canteen. His feet were so swollen he couldn't get them off. He couldn't bear to cut them so he went stumbling on.

The hills swam into his thinking again. He made a dogged search and saw them grayly back of him, away off to the south. He had to wrestle this around a while before he got the sense of it, before he was able to realize he must have come farther than he'd been minded to suppose. He hopefully reflected he was probably not more than a couple of miles off his goal; that eastern drop to the floor of the roughs where he'd lost Bathsheba and where Brownwater Bill had said they would meet.

He could be very near. This was rough looking country filled with swirls of fluted sand, the very convolutions of which might tend to hide from a man afoot any sign of the drop-off until he reached its brink. He began to look for the churned-up area where he'd made his fight and with Brownwater's help, escaped from the crew.

He couldn't find even one hoof-print but in this surge of restored confidence refused to be shaken. Wind could have done that. He floundered on, topping ridge after ridge, his burning eyes encountering nothing but the mauve look of more sand ahead with the sun squatting on it like a disc of molten copper. He wouldn't let himself believe he was lost, not even when outcrops of rock began occasionally to show like broken ribs among the dunes.

Once, remembering the roan he took another backward look; but the horse was gone, vanished in the immensity of darkening desolation. He stumbled and fell.

He struggled onto an elbow, scowling back at the tangled look of his legs and the outcrop of rotten rock that had spilled him. With a vague sense of outrage he clawed onto his knees and scrambled back to the rock. When at last he stood up he was shaking all over.

It was almost full night when he came out on the rimrock and saw the dark gulf of the badlands below. Nothing stirred down there. No sound came up. The cliff-hung trail where he'd lost Bathsheba might be north of him or south. It was anybody's guess, and too dangerous black to tell if the ground was scuffed or not.

Out of desperation he did a crazy thing. From a crocote bush he stripped an armful of branches, packed them back to the edge of the rim and put a match to them. It was a calculated risk. He had known the moment he found the bush he was in the wrong place, because where he had tangled with the Bender crew there had been no wood—they had had to use grass; and there was no grass here, only a few stunted bushes.

With a fascinated, more-than-half-dread, he watched flames leap from the resinous branches, orange and blue, the explosive colors of grease. On this bare lip they could be seen for miles. Would they fetch Spangler's gunhaws or Brownwater Bill?

This fat wood burned fast. He had to scurry about in the jump of his shadow, pulling up more bushes or see the blaze die before he got any good from it. When he ran out of the finger-thin branches the fire burned down to a bed of bright coals. But he kept on moving, around and around the still-red eye of it, knowing the need to make sure he was seen.

Spangler, Duke & Company, if they saw and had managed to get hold of fresh mounts, would investigate whether he showed himself or not. But Brownwater, having Bender and the girls on his mind, would likely prove more cautious. He would have to see Rafe before he'd risk coming in. So Rafe kept tramping, half out of his head with the wear and the strain of it and scared the man would run away.

He was afraid even to think what he would do if Bill did. In his present shape, afoot, without water and half starved besides, armed only with a belt gun and so dang bone-weary he could scarcely stand up, he'd have no chance at all.

He heard the strike of shod hoofs on stone and whirled, stunn-

Now Is Time of Letdown for Mankind

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Now cometh upon the spirit of man the time of the great letdown. The lights still blink at night on the Christmas tree, but they lost a great deal of their joy. The new bike already has its first scratch, there is a hole in the new drum—heaven be praised for that—and the children are cranky and cross.

The good housewife sits down determinedly to make out a list of presents that have to be taken back and exchanged for more useful articles.

But the pencil droops in her hand as she looks around her cluttered home and sighs: "What a mess. Will I ever get this place straightened up again?"

The man of the house secretly takes out two of the four neckties he received, and furtively throws them down the incinerator. He worries about the unpaid bills. He rises late to go to work, and broods over the treadmill nature of his job. He entertains wild daydreams of running away from home and becoming a beachcomber on a far away South Seas Isle. He wonders idly whether the pretty girls there really do weave garlands of flowers to hang around a fellow's neck, or whether that's all just Hollywood poppycock.

There is no help in nature. The tired foot falls on snow or slush. The Weather Bureau and the almanac agree that more storms lie ahead. The first robin of spring is still getting a suntan down south. Everyone who felt so bouncy and happy and generous just a few days ago now feels worn out and self-pitying and suspicious of the character and intentions of his neighbors. Yes, there's something gone wrong with us all.

The waiting rooms of doctors are suddenly thronged with patients afflicted with sniffles and symptoms of a vast ennui.

The young physicians listen to descriptions of these ailments sympathetically, and worry perhaps whether the community is in the grip of some new contagious malady.

The old doctor is wiser. He looks out the window absent-mindedly as his middle-aged patient gives a catalog of his aches and pains and winds up by asking hopefully:

"Do you think I've got walking pneumonia, doc?"

Actually the old doctor knows his patient is merely suffering from seasonal idiosyncrasy, but he can't put it to him in quite that way.

"No, it isn't pneumonia, John," he tells him. "You're just a victim of post-Christmas letdown. There's nothing wrong with you that a couple of aspirin tablets, smaller meals, a little exercise and two hours more sleep a night won't cure."

Yep, that's the national malady of the moment—post-Christmas letdown. But in the bottomless torpor of mind and body that grips us all now there is one consoling thought: The disease is temporary and almost never fatal.

Cincinnati Still Best in Nation

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

College basketball's top ten went through a wholesale shake-up and there's likely to be another shuffle after this week's tournament-studded action throughout the nation.

Cincinnati's all-conquering Bearcats were the only members of the elite group to maintain their position in the new Associated Press' rankings Wednesday. The Bearcats, who whipped Dayton and surprisingly formidable Davidson, not only held on at the top but were the unanimous choice of the 45 sports writers and sportscasters on the national panel.

But behind Cincinnati there was plenty of movement. As a result the next nine followed in this order: Ohio State, Loyola Chicago, Illinois, Kentucky, Arizona State, Southern California, Duke, Stanford and Mississippi State.

Arizona State, Southern Cal and Stanford are all newcomers to the select society. They replaced Colorado, which was sixth, West Virginia, which was seventh, and Seattle, which was 10th.

Ohio State advanced from third to second; Loyola rose from fourth to third; Illinois vaulted from eighth to fourth and Kentucky moved from ninth to fifth.

Duke, beaten by Miami and Davidson, dropped all the way from second to eighth, and Mississippi State skidded from fifth to 10th.

The top ten, based on total points allotted 10 points for a first place team, 9 for second, 8 for third etc. with first place votes in parentheses:

	W	L	Pts.
1. Cincinnati (45)	8	0	450
2. Ohio State	6	0	376
3. Loyola Chicago	7	0	368
4. Illinois	5	0	327
5. Kentucky	5	2	324
6. Arizona State	7	1	311
7. Southern California	9	0	95
8. Duke	8	2	92
9. Stanford	7	0	91
10. Mississippi State	6	1	90

DOROTHY DIX Daughter Judges Father

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: My father, though wonderful enough in his way—that is providing us with the necessities of life and me with an education—needs an eye opener. He is completely selfish; hunts or fishes 52 weekends of the year with no regard for Mom, who is a saint on earth.

I'm married now so it makes no never-mind how he spends his holidays and weekends, but don't you think it would be a kindness to Mom if he gave her the choice of spending every other weekend as she pleased with him?

All through my school years it was she, not he, who came to applaud our school activities. Why? He was off hunting or fishing. I love him dearly but think it's about time he thought of somebody besides himself. Please print your answer. He's an avid reader of your column. —Dutiful Daughter

Dear Dutiful: I agree with all you say but—and it's a big "but"—don't try to run your parents' lives for them even if motivated by the best intentions. How your father spends his weekends is your mother's concern, not yours.

So long as the two are capable of supporting themselves, be compassionate enough to let them lead their own lives. But it would do no harm to talk to your father and not when your mother is present. Tell him fair is fair, and for the sake of his marriage to vary his hunting-fishing routine by taking his wife out on alternate weekends.

Make a list of the places they could go and things they could see together which would be fun for both. If there is an indoor archery lane in your town, suggest that. Women soon learn to be as adept as men with the bow arrow. Since your father is a sportsman he would get a thrill out of it too.

Square dancing is another form of entertainment for two or more. Search the amusement columns for ideas. Query friends of your parents. You'll wind up with a fun list everybody, including your father and mother, will want.

Dear Helen: I have a big mouth and talk before I think. It's reached the point where I dread to see anyone for fear of saying something which will bring the ceiling down upon everybody, including myself. How can I learn to curb my tongue? —Town Gossip

Dear Gossip: Avoid discussion of personalities unless all concerned are dead. Gossips, in the best sense, are story tellers. In order to make gossip worth repeating, it must be imaginative. Put your imagination to constructive use by taking a course in short story writing. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my leaflet, "And So You Want to Write."

Dear Helen: You are as dated as the Dodo bird. I am 13, wear lipstick, pluck my eyebrows and, once in awhile, apply mascara to my eyes. What's so wrong in wearing lipstick? I see nothing wrong with having boy friends either. You sound like a Grandma Moses. I bet you don't print this. Disagreeably—Modern Teen-ager

Dear Modern: You write like a little girl whistling in the dark. There's nothing wrong in painting your lips, plucking your eyebrows or brushing mascara on your eyelashes even if you're only 13. It's the motive behind the doodling which should concern you and your parents. And that goes for dating too.

Actually, you can do anything you want except bamboozle nature. If you choose to flag the boys before you're prepared physically or mentally to assume the responsibilities of adult life, that's okay with Nature. All I'm trying to do is help you lead a normal, happy life. My advice is based on common sense, not prudery. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my leaflet, "What Age for Dating."

Send your problem to Helen Worden Erskine care of this newspaper. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—The nationally-famous Hot Springs Christmas Eve pageant will be presented for the 32nd time tonight at the foot of Hot Springs Mountain. The program is sponsored by the National Park Service and the Chamber of Commerce. It includes carols, drama scenes and readings from the Bible and attracts several thousand visitors annually.

Chicken Gravy 100% Hit

The telephone often brings word of unexpected company during the holiday season. After hanging up with the words "we'd be delighted to stay for dinner if you don't fuss" still echoing in your ears, where do you turn? Score yourself 100% if the answer includes the cupboard, refrigerator, and freezer. From these three comes help in the form of convenience food . . . good things, too . . . like canned chicken gravy.

This chicken gravy is double rich in flavor and combines so well with so many other foods. And for that company tonight let it work wonders in this dish. Here is how you go about putting it together:

Mock Chicken Italian
1/2 cup sliced onion
1/2 teaspoon leaf oregano
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 package (9 ounces) frozen Italian green beans, cooked
4 servings sliced cooked chicken
1 can (10 3/4 ounces) chicken gravy
Gruyere or Parmesan cheese
Cook onion and oregano in butter until onion is tender. Combine with beans in bottom of a shallow baking dish (9x6x2"). Arrange chicken on top of beans; pour chicken gravy over; sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Place under broiler about 4 to 5 inches from heat for about 8 minutes or until bubbling hot and lightly browned. Makes 4 servings.

SPICED veal and peaches simmer together and produce a notable timesaving, tempting dish for a small dinner.

Mongolia, China Sign a Treaty

TOKYO (AP)—Mongolia has signed a border treaty with Red China but showed no signs of shifting to the Chinese side in Peking's open ideological feud with Moscow.

The New China News Agency announced the signing Wednesday only 24 hours after Premier Urmahin Tsendenbal of Mongolia arrived in Peking at the invitation of Premier Chou En-lai.

DENIM MEN OF AMERICA

BOILERMAKERS

Electricity created by atomic power came to New York City in August, 1962, when the Indian Point nuclear station generated its first wattage to consumers! The plant's great boilers heated by splitting atoms, produce 2,200,000 lbs. of steam an hour and generate electricity for 1 million city dwellers. The nation's 35,496 denim clad boiler-makers build and man this modern equipment—some of which are equipped with television cameras as safety devices that picture furnace fires and water levels on the instrument panel. 2,500 of these skilled workers in denim serve Uncle Sam in Navy shipyards and federal power plants. Others are employed by railroads, marine firms, iron and steel companies. As America's demand for electricity grows, and industry turns to atomic energy, increasing numbers of these craftsmen will be needed.

Drive to Up Interest Rates Slowing

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The battle to lure personal savings into institutional hands may be still fiercer in 1963 although the drive to raise interest rates is abating.

The fight could turn to new inducements to start savings accounts, such as gifts and souvenirs, and more services to clients of the variety of institutions which vie for the saver's dollars.

And the competition next year also may sharpen in the lending side of the business. For the total of savings is piling up in the coffers of most potential lenders. Unless a major increase in economic growth spurs demand for loans, many institutions will be looking over the more lucrative forms of lending with zeal, and perhaps venturing into some of these for the first time.

They have to keep their dollars at work profitably to maintain the higher rates of interest many of them put into effect this year.

Despite the competition this year, most types of savings institutions reported increased assets. But the rate of growth for many slowed noticeably.

Savings and loan association accounts gained by $9.3 billion in 1962, up 7 per cent from 1961. The total for the 6,884 in the nation is put at $90.2 billion by the U.S. Savings O Loan League, bringing the total of accounts and other assets to $93.6 billion. Their mortgage lending volume rose by $20.5 billion to a total of $24.8 billion. The league says advance mortgage commitments of $2.3 billion at year's end should mean continued high lending levels in the early months of 1963.

Mutual savings bank accounts totaled $40.5 billion at the end of September, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board reports.

It puts savings accounts in commercial banks at $85 billion. Holdings of E and H U.S. Savings Bonds at $45 billion show a gain of about a billion in the year.

A comparable yearly gain is reported by the Credit Union National Association. This fast growing competitor of older savings institutions now holds a record $7.1 billion in assets. Almost a million new members in the year bring the total to 13.7 million. Together their accounts come to $6.4 billion. Loans rose half a billion to $5.4 billion. The association dropped some 1,000 inactive unions and added 1,200 newly formed ones for a total now of 21,200 unions.

The Bureau of Federal Credit Unions reports granting 600 new charters this year, bringing the total to 10,700 with seven million members. Their assets rose 13 1/2 per cent to $3.4 billion, with members' savings $3 billion.

In another form of savings, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board puts the reserves of life insurance companies at $104 billion, up $4.8 billion in 1962. The Institute of Life Insurance says 120 million persons are protected up to a total of $880 billion in force. It looks for further gains in number of those protected and the total involved.

Americans have other forms of savings, such as home ownership, stock holdings. Many of them did not do so well in stocks, and some sold and put the returns into the savings institutions.

And the new year should see still further switching from one form to another, as returns change and or opportunity for capital gains arise, with all the competitors working hard to benefit.

Arkansas Record

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Eleven Christmas weekend traffic deaths pushed Arkansas past a 21-year-old highway fatality record this year with the long New Year's weekend still to come.

Capt. Bill Miller of the State Police said the record of 503 deaths set in 1941 was broken on Christmas Eve. Through this morning, State Police recorded 509 deaths this year.

Miller said past experience indicates at least 10 more persons will die on the highways between now and midnight Dec. 31.

When the record was set in 1941, Miller noted, Arkansas had half as many cars and half as many registered drivers as it does now.

"With the increase in traffic, we

Is The Heat Thief In Your Attic?

Is there a thief in your attic, lifting the roof off your fuel costs?

This winter, you and your fellow homeowners will be robbed of over two billion dollars in excessive fuel costs. Your own fuel costs may be $50 higher than they should be, due to the presence of that all-time villain, the "Heat Thief."

The Heat Thief could be in your attic right now. Perhaps you've suspected his presence by the high setting required on the thermostat.

An inspection of the attic can quickly confirm his presence, since his trail is unmistakable. Look at the insulation. Has the Heat Thief pulled it apart from joists and wiring? Has he stomped on it so it's now shrunken and far less in thickness than the four to six inches recommended by the building industry?

If so, it's time you chased him from your attic forever by throwing up an effective insulation barrier. It never pays to skimp on insulation. Unlike fuel costs, which have risen so much the past decade, the price of insulation has been relatively stable. For example, an insulation barrier of expanded vermiculite will cost you about three cents per board foot.

If you have less than four inches of insulation, simply pour a full material such as vermiculite right over your present insulation. If your home is air-conditioned, you may prefer the six-inch thickness recommended by the air-conditioning and electric heating industries.

Year after year, adequate insulation pays you a handsome return on your investment in reduced fuel and power bills. For the heating season alone, according to the Vermiculite Institute, a four-inch layer of vermiculite returns from 7.5 per cent to 42 per cent annually (depending on your climate) for every 1,000 square feet of attic area.

Not All Issue Settled, Says Tito

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Tito of Yugoslavia, on his way home today from talks

LONG WAY FROM HOME—Linda Saenz, a fourth grade pupil caught this monarch butterfly on her school playground in Beaumont, Tex. A small tag, made of a light, white material, was folded over the outer edge of one wing. It read: "Send to Zoology College, Toronto, Canada."

CLEAN-UP FOR 88TH—Plastic sheets cover statues and scaffolds fill the halls while interior painters spruce up the Capitol for the return of the 88th Congress.

with Soviet Premier Khrushchev in Moscow, made clear they failed to settle all major differences between them.

Tito told Yugoslav newsmen traveling on the train with him that after his talks with Soviet leaders on Kremlin foreign policies the policies are somewhat clearer.

But Tito indicated he intends to pursue his independent brand of communism. That policy led to his break with Moscow during the Stalin regime though relations have taken a turn for the better since.

Prospect of Peace Good Says Pope

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The world this Christmas is enjoying its greatest peace in more than two decades, Pope John XXIII said today.

The 81-year-old Roman Catholic leader told a general audience of 1,000 pilgrims that peace now prevails generally around the globe after "the wisdom of rulers" overcame a dangerous period two months ago.

His reference apparently was to the Cuban crisis. The pontiff had appealed urgently then for negotiations and a renewed willingness to seek peace.

Pope John called the tranquility of this Christmas "a happy circumstance" in contrast with wars

Negro Man Is Stabbed to Death

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (AP) — A Negro man was stabbed to death after an argument in a cafe Tuesday night and police were holding his 18-year-old wife in connection with the crime.

Johnny Lee Leeper, 19, was dead on arrival at an Arkadelphia hospital. He was stabbed in the chest at a cafe in Okolona, 30 miles west of Arkadelphia.

His wife, Adell, was held on an open charge.

and isolated flareups of fighting in past Christmases.

The Pope asked the gathering to pray that peace might be consolidated.

Today is the feast of St. Stephen, whom the Roman Catholic Church honors as the first Christian martyr. The day is a holiday in Italy.

Highlight in History Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today's highlight in history: On this day in 1939, the Black Sea coast of Northern Anatolia, Turkey, was devastated by earthquake shocks, followed by floods, and extreme cold and snow. More than 30,000 persons were killed, 100,000 were injured, and a half million others were made homeless.

On this day

In 1776, Congress granted George Washington dictatorial powers over military matters for a period of six months.

In 1832, John Calhoun became the first vice president of the United States to resign.

In 1892, the cornerstone was laid for the Protestant Episcopal Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York City.

In 1949, Queen Juliana ended 347 years of Dutch rule by signing an act transferring sovereignty to the newly formed United States of Indonesia.

In 1954, the United States regained the Davis tennis cup from Australia.

Ten years ago...United Nations patrols clashed with communist forces of increasing strength all along the frozen war front in Korea.

Five years ago...the 5th Federal Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans delayed indefinitely the impending integration of public school in Dallas, Tex.

One year ago...Indian Prime Minister Nehru denied western charges that India's use of force against and two other Portuguese colonies flouted the United Nations charter.
